Access Ways in Tourism

International Conference

Pécs, Hungary

2 October 2020

The Department of Tourism of the Institute of Geography and Earth Sciences at the Faculty of Sciences, University of Pécs is organising this year the 10th National Tourism Conference. The initiative was launched on the turn of the new millennium and since then the conference has been organised biannually, offering a platform for the discussion of the findings of Hungarian tourism researches. In the last two decades the conferences have been attended by the best tourism experts, teachers and researchers of Hungary, enriching the professional discourse with the presentation of their latest results. In the framework of this 10th conference the goal is to make a parallel between the Hungarian values and global trends, as it is done by many Hungarian and international researchers. Accordingly, organisers open their conference this year to international researchers, by putting an international section to the programme.

The conference is supported by the EFOP-3.6.2-16-2017-00017 project called “Sustainable, intelligent and inclusive regional and city models”, co-financed by the European Union, Hungary and the European Social Fund.
